STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This well-built granite house was acquired by the Todd family in the 1930's. When farming was a depressed industry, the Todd family moved here from North Carolina and by working very hard, took possession of farm after farm and made their pay.

Forty years later the next generation owns thousands of acres waiting for development while they continue to farm, in the interim, on a large scale.

Houses don't interest them.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This structure has undergone extensive renovation. The original stone house faces towards the north and is L-shaped. A brand-new one and one-half story frame addition is attached to the eastern extreme, while a two-story addition adjoins the western side of the building. Each leg of the oldest part is three bays by two. Two 2 X 2 attic panes are located at either end of the legs, and the rest of the windows are 6 X 6, all in nailed frames. There are two doors in the original section; one on the northern side of the inside corner of the "L", and one on the southern embrasure. A fanlight is situated above the northern entrance. The roof is gable-flank and asphalt-covered, trimmed with a box cornice and frieze. A two-bay porch covers the northern entrance, while a southern one encloses it's door. Both shelters have elaborately-carved braces on the columns. There are two flush-end chimneys, each on either gable-end of the "L".

The Interior

Most of the interior has been gutted by recent renovation. It is ascertainable that the first floor had a thru-hall. Some features, such as box-locks and inset windows, have been retained. The attic has beams connected with old square nails, while the cellar beams feature mortise and tendon joints. One of these is inscribed: "F.A.H. August 1891". These are probably the initials of one of the Hancocks that lived there at that time. A solitary stone fireplace arch is also located in the cellar.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This property is part of a large and very old tract called Christopher's Camp, which was patented by Christopher Barnes at 1000 acres in 1684. The other portion of the estate had a house built upon it by Richard Wilmot in 1771, and this was later owned by Dr. Jacob Hall, who acquired the tract in 1784. Hall taught school at his home as well as at Cokesbury College. The tract in question, containing Oak Hall, has two origins. Part of it was Jacob Hall's land, which the doctor purchased prior to 1800, and the other portion was at one time the property of one John McAdow, according to the 1783 Tax List. Oak Hall probably dates from the 1840's, when the Reverend John Davis acquired the property. Davis is said to have conducted a school there, and he willed the property to his five daughters in 1853. One of these daughters apparently married a Hancock, who owned the house in 1878 according to the Martenet Map. There is a small, school-like structure on the property, which may have served as Reverend Davis' school at one time.
